

7 dairy-free vegan products that are even better than the original

We've tried a lot of vegan dairy substitutes here, and some are better than others—and that's being generous. But we live in a glorious time when store-bought vegan foods aren't limited to plasticky neon orange cheese slices and anemic carob soy ice cream. No, we can do better now! And these 7 products aren't just as good as the original version, we like them more.

3. daiya dairy-free dressings

Creamy salad dressings need not be a thing of the past! Daiya Dairy-Free Dressings are available in Homestyle Ranch, Blue Cheeze and Creamy Caesar, so they've covered all of the essential creamy salad dressing bases, and each as is rich and flavorful as any of its dairy-based counterparts.

6. daiya cheezy mac

If you've got a hankering for something seriously cheesy (and who doesn't), these boxed vegan Mac and Cheese mixes can't be beat. Each cooks up in about ten minutes and tastes cheesy enough that you'd never know it was dairy-free if it didn't say so on the box.