

POPSUGAR.

We've Been Exceptionally Blessed by 5 Flavors of Daiya's Vegan, Gluten-Free Cheesecakes

Would a cheesecake by any other name taste as sweet? The answer is yes, because Daiya's "Cheezecake" is frickin' to die for. We sampled all five of the brand's coconut-based, soy-free, peanut-free, gluten-free vegan cheesecakes and almost blacked out from pure bliss.

New York, Strawberry, Key Lime, Chocolate, and Pumpkin flavors were immediately devoured by our taste-testing coworkers and earned some rave reviews (with a few critiques). Personally, we're blown away by how creamy and smooth the texture was – and how there's not a drop of dairy in these decadent desserts.

A slice will run you roughly 360 calories depending on the flavor, with about 17 grams of sugar (22 for chocolate) and a few grams of protein. Here's what everyone thought of each flavor:

New York (Plain)

- This does NOT taste dairy-free. It's dripping in dairy goodness!
- Changed my entire life.
- There's no dairy in this!?! SO good!
- Pretty good; creamy and rich!
- Favorite! Tastes natural.
- Yum!
- Tastes fantastic!

Pumpkin

- This is real!!
- F*ck yes!!!
- Tastes like protein powder in cake form.
- Delicious!
- Tastes like pumpkin pie!
- Wow, wow, wow.

Key Lime

- Very zesty! Love.
- Mmm, so good and zesty!
- Love!
- A great, lighter take on cheesecake.
- VERY limey.
- Liked the start, but the end is just too limey.

Strawberry

- If strawberry ice cream and cheesecake had a baby!
- Tastes like strawberry ice cream!
- Tastes like Neapolitan!
- Would like more berry flavor.
- Berry tastes artificial.
- Just like strawberry ice cream. Yum.

Chocolate

- Fudgsicle pie!
- This CANT be skinny!?!?
- Good, but I want more chocolate!
- Tastes like fudge!
- Perfection.
- Good but ordinary.
- It's good but could be a bit sweeter!
